

Cesarine

Overview

Cesarine.com brings together the oldest and largest Italian network of home cooks and chefs, founded in 2004 in Bologna with the mission of spreading and handing down the typical local gastronomic heritage. In 2014 the community became a digital platform and today brings together about 1,500 enthusiasts in every Italian region. Each year Cesarine and Cesarini open the doors of their homes to more than 50,000 travelers - international and domestic - to offer cooking classes, lunches and dinners, and market tours. Cesarine also organizes team building and tailor-made corporate dinners, both in their homes and at other locations, show cooking activities, and visits to wineries and local producers.

Sustainability

Cesarine is committed to sharing and handing down Italian and regional culinary heritage, bringing to light stories and traditions hidden in every corner of Italy. It promotes the well-being and continued growth of people, creating a strong sense of community, and a warm and inclusive environment. Social inclusion and support for micro-entrepreneurship, especially by women, are central to Cesarine, with the goal of supporting local economies, generating value, and strengthening communities. Finally, each initiative reflects values related to environmental sustainability, such as respect for nature, highlighting local products, and reducing waste.
